World Peace from the Inside Out

Speaker: Hugh Taft-Morales, Leader of the Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia

Since its birth, Ethical Culture has advocated peaceful solutions to all forms of conflict - from interpersonal conflict to street crime, to global war. As an inspirational humanist philosophy, perhaps Ethical Culture's most unique contribution to peace building is about starting with our selves. Hugh Taft-Morales explores the truth behind Thich Nhat Hanh's advice: "Root out the violence in your life, and learn to live compassionately and mindfully. Seek peace. When you have peace within, real peace with others is possible."

Keeping Religion & Government Separate: It's the Right Thing to do

Speaker: Ed Joyce, chapter leader of Americans United for Separation of Church and State

Our nation's First Amendment Religious Clause is vague about where to draw the line between church and state. This, in spite of over 50 years of Supreme rulings dealing with the issue. Regardless of the interpretation of the First Amendment, keeping religion and government separate is the right thing to do. The responsibility of maintaining a distinct separation between religion and government lies not in our Constitution but in an enlightened public and in intelligent legislation.

Ed Joyce has been a chapter leader with Americans United for Separation of Church and State since 2008, and was elected President of the Delaware Valley Chapter of Americans United in 2010. Ed speaks to groups in the Delaware Valley on the importance of maintaining a healthy separation between religion and government. Prior to joining Americans United, Ed was a research scientist involved in the oil industry with a Ph.D. in Geology. He has also served as adjunct professor of Earth Sciences at the University of Houston and the University of St. Thomas.

Moral Heroes and Feet of Clay

Speaker: Hugh Taft-Morales, Leader of the Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia

Great spiritual moral leaders, like Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr. are often placed on a pedestal, but their inevitable human limitations and frailties often disappoint. Some people idealize such leaders because in a world darkened by violence and greed, we seek moral heroes who can drive away evil with the light of their goodness. At the other extreme, others take pleasure in tearing down every icon of moral purity, either to expose hypocrisy or to relieve themselves of the burden of living up to such a high standard. How can we acknowledge the goodness expressed by our moral leaders, while admitting their limitations, in a way that brings out our best as moral leaders?

Building the (global) Beloved Community

Speaker: Mary Day Kent, board member of the United Nations Association, Greater Philadelphia chapter

In recognition of United Nations Day (Oct.24) and the challenges of bringing the United States into the international community, the talk will highlight the urgency of engaging the US in being part of the global community. Specific points will include the role of the UN globally, the impact UN agencies have, and the ways that participation in UN treaties and programs would benefit us in the US. Support for the UN brings us into the world community as equal members. "Our rights and nothing less, our rights and nothing more."

Mary Day Kent's professional work has included advocacy for CARE USA and the Philadelphia Yearly Meeting (Quakers). She has administered international programs for the American Friends Service Committee and served as Executive Director of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, US Section. She has worked in international education as the associate director of the Intercultural Career Training program at the School for International Training, World Education, Vermont and as Coordinator of the International Classroom program at the Penn University Museum. She is a member of Chestnut Hill Friends Meeting.

FAMILY ALBUM—A One-Act Play

By Diana Cavallo, Playwright and professor (ret.) of fiction and non-fiction writing at the University of Pennsylvania.

This play was the winner of the Ethical Society's 2011 One-Act Playwriting Contest. Set in an upscale Philly apartment in the present, the play features a confrontation between two sisters, both of them writers, one of whom has just written a book about their father's suicide that raises serious ethical questions, both regarding suicide and the sense of personal and family betrayal. The reading will be directed by Karen DiLossi and performed by experienced actors. A coffee break and discussion with the participants will follow.

Diana Cavallo, playwright, novelist and non-fiction writer, is a member of P.E.N., American Center, the Authors Guild, and the Philadelphia Dramatists Center. Her plays include Bearing Witness, The Ladies of Juniper Street, and The Truth of the Matter. Her published work includes the novel A Bridge of Leaves (Atheneum), the non-fiction work The Lower East Side: A Portrait in Time, (Macmillan), and inclusion in various anthologies: Don't Tell Mama (Penquin), The Dream Book, (Schocken), and From the Margin (Purdue University Press). Other professional credentials include a Fulbright Teaching Fellowship (Pisa, Italy) and her 18-year stint teaching fiction and non-fiction at Penn. <>

President's Message

Meet the New Leader

Temma Fishman

On March 21, 2011 at a special meeting of the membership, the Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia unanimously and enthusiastically voted to offer a contract to Hugh Taft-Morales to serve as our new leader. We couldn't have been happier. This was the result of an exhaustive effort by our Search Committee culminating in an unqualified recommendation from them and a unanimous endorsement of Hugh by our Board of Trustees.

Hugh now serves as our half-time leader in Philadelphia, a quarter-time leader at the Baltimore Ethical Society, and as a consulting leader with the Ethical Society Without Walls. He is a devoted husband to his wife Maureen and father to their three children, Sean (24), Maya (18) and Justin, (16). They all live in Takoma Park, MD - so he is indeed a very busy man. Fortunately, Hugh is an extremely dedicated and organized leader, who has already inspired us. Last year, while serving as our leader intern, he analyzed the structure of our board of trustees and committees and wrote reports making recommendations on how we can improve their functions.

Hugh may have inherited his leadership abilities genetically. To quote from a press release composed by Betsy Lightbourn, "Although Taft-Morales was raised in a secular environment, his great-grandfather, William Howard Taft, a Unitarian, was the only U. S. President to serve as president of a religious organization: the General Conference of Unitarian Churches from 1915 until 1925."

His gift at organization is helping our Board of Trustees and committees become more efficient in the service of our Society. While Hugh is committed to making our involvement as volunteers and lay leaders more productive, he is also very interested in making it a more rewarding endeavor. He thinks it is crucial that we come away feeling we are getting more out of our experience at the Society than we are putting in, and he is working toward that end. He has a patient, compassionate way of making suggestions as to how we can improve our contributions in time and effort - and he's a great listener. He has already soothed many a fevered brow. And, did I mention that he plays the guitar and sings? As I write this, we plan to gather and sing for peace on International Peace Day, September 21 outside our Society under Hugh's musical direction and guitar playing.

Hugh has his busy schedule for the year already figured out. We know when he will be working in the leader's office, (he posts his hours on our door) and when he will be presenting platforms, attending meetings and leading adult education classes. Through it all, Hugh remains accessible to us when we need to share information or seek his advice.

Hugh is committed to spreading the word about us. He willingly offers to speak to the press or to serve as a spokesman for Ethical Culture to anyone who will listen. He welcomes people to meet him in his office and has written an eloquent message about our Society that you can find on our website, phillyethics.org. He has even sat outside our building wearing a sign encouraging passers-by to question him about Ethical Culture. As Hugh says, for him, "Ethical Culture leadership is not just a job, but a calling." With Hugh's encouragement, we will be forming more connections with the community of freethinkers, humanists, atheists and other progressives to give us a stronger voice in the service of social justice. Hugh will encourage us to connect with local colleges and universities to bring those young people to our doors.

Aren't we lucky that Hugh was drawn to us by what he sees as our vibrancy and desire to make our Society flourish? He inspires and invigorates us with the hope that we can spread the Ethical Culture vision of a humane world. He has instilled in us a justified hope for a great future for our Society, which is, for many of us, our home away from home.

And, if you haven't already done so, come by the Society to meet our new leader. You'll want to stay or return to enjoy a platform or class, I guarantee it. <>

Connecting with Leader Hugh!

As part of my new life as a commuting leader, I want to make sure members of the Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia can get in touch with me. Should you want to deepen your connection to Ethical Humanism, get more involved in EHSP, or ask for advice or support, feel free to reach out in any of the following ways. Call my cell phone at 301-580-1481. E-mail me at LeaderHugh@phillyethics.org and I will be back in touch with you soon. But best of all, come see me in person! I am holding regular office hours most Wednesdays from 10:00AM-5:00PM. Drop by the Leader's Office and unless I am out picking up lunch or a coffee I should be there. I will be in Philadelphia many days other than Wednesdays, but often I could be in meetings, out networking, or engaged in ethical action projects, so please call first. My schedule will be posted on my door. Stay connected!

Yours,
Hugh

Celebrate United Nations Day

October 24 is UN Day. This year it is a Monday, but not a holiday-type Monday—far from it in our United States! A large percentage of our population experiences fear and hostility toward the UN as a “threat” to our national sovereignty. Although the US was arguably the primary force for establishing the UN, and although the UN has a fantastic track record of achievements in fostering nations’ living well together on this Earth, the fear of external control has been winning out in our country.

Even though many of us believe this fear is irrational and against our best interests, too few of us align ourselves in overt support of the UN. Too few are members of the organization that is the backbone of UN support in the USA: the United Nations Association of the USA, <http://una-usa.org>, and its local chapters, including Philadelphia’s: <http://una-gp.org>.

On Sunday, October 23, the eve of UN Day, our Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia will have a platform encouraging increased support of the UN by our government (see above, p. 1.)

But to have US government support, there should be support among the governed. So we will also have on October 23 a membership drive for the United Nations Association. This drive will allow each of us to show our support for the UN. First-year membership is $25, and renewals are $40. So please come on October 23 prepared to join the UNA through its local Greater Philadelphia chapter, UNA-GP. (If you cannot attend that Sunday, please join through the web site, <http://una-gp.org> or get membership information from: Nick Sanders nmsanders3@verizon.net

The Day the Universe Changed: A philosophically fun video and discussion

Come view and discuss a video series by James Burke, The Day the Universe Changed. Burke explores with wit and wisdom links between knowledge and reality through stories about the history of Western Civilization.

Join Ethical Culture Leader Hugh Taft-Morales from 7:30-9:30PM on the third Monday evening of every month, September through May. The second installment is on Monday, October 17: “In the Light of the Above: Medieval Conflict - Faith & Reason”.

Come even if you missed the first episode. Open to the public.

Worldly Wisdom

is meeting at 7 PM on Tues., Oct 18th. Each member is reporting on one chapter from Alexis de Tocqueville’s Democracy in America. Send chapter choice to terry.murley@verizon.net

Upcoming Community Committee Events

October 12th at 7:30--Community Committee meeting. Everyone is encouraged to attend. There are many ways you can contribute, including some which would not require regularly attending meetings—like signing up greeters for the Sunday Platform.

October 30—5th Sunday Lunch Potluck— Please bring something that goes well with different foods. Tell Ken if you are willing to step forward to help with the set-up/clean-up, as no group is specifically in charge. (This is the only 5th Sunday of the ’11-’12 season.)

November 20—Humanist Thanksgiving Luncheon—One of our largest and nicest community events. We need one or two people to be impresario for the event, co-ordinating food & set-up. The platform starts at 11, but many people need to come early to set up the feast!

Our new Leader's first Get to Know Us Social

at 7:00PM

The Get to Know Us Social offers interested visitors and newcomers the opportunity to mingle over wine and cheese with established members as we all review the ideas central to the Ethical Society's special religious perspective. We will reflect upon Ethical Humanism's key tenets—the intrinsic worth of every human being, naturalism, nontheism and ethics as a way of life. We will contemplate the importance of this philosophical slant, as it pertains to us, as individuals and as a collective.

The program will be led by Hugh Taft-Morales, the new, dynamic leader of the Ethical Humanist Society of Philadelphia.

Camp Linden 2011 Summer Season

Camp Linden completed a successful camp season which ran from July 5 until August 12. The camp worked with three groups: Education Works, Haddington Townhouses, and Community Concern 13, to provide a day camp experience for six groups of children. Camp activities included swimming, nature walks, and organic gardening.

The theme of this year's Camp was RESPECT. EHSOP members who wish to learn more about the camp or get involved with the Camp Linden Committee should contact Jeffrey Dubb at jeffrey.dubb@gmail.com

Taft-Morales Writes for AEU Report

The September issue of the Ethical Action Report of the American Ethical Union was written and edited principally by Hugh Taft-Morales. Among the topics addressed are the following:

- *Respond to African Famine Crisis Now and Create Long-term Solutions
- *Support HJ Resolution 47 to Extend Time for Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment
- *Advocate for an Ethical Path to Deficit Reduction
- *Write to Your State Legislators to Oppose Voter Photo ID laws and Early Voting Cutbacks

You may read the issue at: <http://aeu.org/library/eactions/EAR201109.pdf>

Janice Moore Wins First Place in Arts Competition

Janice Moore, the layout editor of this newsletter, recently won first place in the September exhibition of the Plastic Club at 247 S. Camac St., which since 1897 has been devoted to the promotion and preservation of the visual (plastic) arts in Philadelphia. The theme of the exhibition was "Sand, Sea, Wind and Stars," and Janice submitted a triptych that fit the "stars" part. Congratulations, Janice!
